

Q.1 Question 1: What is the cognitivist approach to understanding the functioning of the human mind? How is it different from the other approaches to studying the same problem? What are possible merits and demerits of the same?

Q.2 Question 2: Describe in brief, the organization of function in the human brain. What are the lobes and their functions, also disorders that may arise out of the damage/injury to these areas?

Q.3 Question 3: Briefly describe the methods used in Cognitive Psychology. How do these methods quantify the functioning of the human mind and what are their pros and cons?

Q.4 Question 4: What is a mental representation? What is the function of a mental representation in the scheme of mental functions? What is the relationship between representation and perception?